You've seen the neighbor kids' heads bobbing up and down with giggles and laughs. That was probably the first time the kids got hooked, no wait, obsessed with wanting a trampoline. For as much research done on trampolines there was always the concerns about safety and the price. Worried that after awhile they will get tired of it and the trampoline sits alone. As the kids got older (my oldest is now 9) their toys get more sophisticated but jumping on a trampoline is still a favorite activity. It is a no brainer to consider Springfree Trampoline since they are the world's safest trampoline. They are sold in 15 countries and received the 2010 Product of the Year Award in both the United States and Canada. Constantly trying to innovate with their products it is great to see them in partnership with tgoma a digital gaming startup that brings the fun of digital interactive gaming to the outdoors on your very own Springfree Trampoline. The acronym tgoma means "Take Gaming Outside and Make it Active."

Springfree Trampoline

Outdoor Interactive Digital Gaming with tgoma

This will be the first outdoor interactive digital gaming system that encourages kids to go outside and be active – Springfree featuring tgoma. You are not just purchasing a Springfree Trampoline's high-quality and safety-conscious patented design but you are also getting tgoma's unique outdoor digital gaming system with interactive games that highlight competitive play and physical activity.

“Our goal is to shift kids' behavior from indoor sedentary play to outdoor active play,” said Steve Holmes, founder of tgoma. “Instead of fighting technology, it's about leveraging it to transform 'screen time' from an isolating, sedentary activity to a healthful, engaging experience for the entire family.”

How does it work?

Springfree featuring tgoma incorporates specialized sensor technology on the trampoline that directly integrates with the users' own tablet device. The tgoma app is free and can be downloaded from iTunes or Google Play. The app contains seven signature games, designed to engage the entire family with options including educational games, interactive fitness options and playful activities.

It's interactive, so tgoma enables players to participate in worldwide competitions and compare their high scores with friends, family and participants all over the world.

The tgoma outdoor interactive gaming system will launch with seven interactive games, including:

- Stickers: Designed for younger jumpers to create shapes and sounds
- Whatzat?: Encourages young jumpers to create their own games with themes such as farmyard, vehicles, dinosaurs, etc.
- Math Hopper: An introduction to mathematics for young users
- Alien Stomp: Based on the classic fairground whack-a-mole game
- Fruitants: Designed for older kids to overcome challenges through mutant melons and grumpy grapes
- 2048: For older jumpers and adults to exercise the body while exercising the mind
- tgomaFit: Transform the trampoline into an interactive exercise experience and access jump stats, set goals and view energy burned – perfect for parents and kids

This creates a gaming system that is used outdoors with your Springfree Trampoline and they are creating a whole new category of backyard fun and entertainment. Jumpers will benefit from an array of health benefits, from cardiovascular fitness, to bone strengthening, to endorphin release — offering a fun way to merge exercise with play.

tgoma is currently available exclusively for Springfree Trampolines and is fully integrated into all new models. For current Springfree Trampoline owners, tgoma is also available as a separate accessory.
